Travel + Leisure GOLF

FALMOUTH, MA – New Falmouth Golf LLC, owners of The Golf Club of Cape Cod (TGC), announced today that the Club has been recognized as one of the "10 Best New Courses 2007" by Travel + Leisure GOLF, an American Express publication. Public and private courses qualify for the selection each year, and this year's list included courses as distant as New Zealand. The Golf Club was the only course from New England to receive the "Best New Course" honor.

The "10 Best New Courses" article was featured in the November/December 2007 issue of Travel + Leisure GOLF. The editors wrote, "Among the year's ten most exciting new courses are some with a common sense theme and others that rode in on a bolt of inspiration."

"Our members and I would say that we are both," said Kenny Shaevel, owner and director of membership. "Rees Jones has done a tremendous job sculpting the course from the natural landscape here and the routing is, as another publication, Golf on Cape Cod, wrote, 'a bright and colorful feather in Jones' routing cap.' We are pleased to accept this honor on behalf of our members."

The complete list of "Best New Courses" includes:

The Golf Club of Cape Cod, Falmouth, MA (private)
Kinloch Club, Kinloch, New Zealand (public)
Chambers Bay, Tacoma, WA (public)
Golf Club at Ravenna, Littleton, CO (private)
